

Press Release

Caroline Bowler & Ros Keen

Actons' Litigation Team expands

Nottingham law firm Actons has seen its Dispute Resolution department expand during October with the appointment of two solicitors, Ros Keen and Caroline Bowler.

Ros joins from Browne Jacobson and brings with her an excellent reputation in both insolvency and restructuring work and in commercial dispute matters. She will be working with Directors, Chris Murratt and Nicky Calthrop-Owen in developing the department's reputation further. Her employment increases our capacity to service the needs of an expanding client base.

Caroline recently completed her training contract with Actons and has been employed by the firm on qualification. Caroline is a keen horse rider and in addition to working on general commercial dispute cases will be utilising her litigation skills to develop equine law services for the firm's clients.

Chris Murratt said: All at Actons are delighted to welcome both Ros and Caroline to the department. They both possess excellent litigation skills which will be put to good use on behalf of our clients. We are committed to recruiting and retaining employees like Ros and Caroline who help ensure that our clients receive a first class service.
